

I'm visiting a Chinese garden.
I enter a gate without doors.

I see a lot of water.
It looks as smooth as a mirror.
I can see things in it.
I'm glad for water to drink.

I see a huge rock.
The rock looks so strong.
It will not move or fall down.
I'm glad I'm strong now, too.

I see trees.

They stand tall and give shade.

I'm glad for trees to rest
under on a sunny day.

The Chinese garden is beautiful and peaceful.
I'll remember it whenever
I see water, rocks, and trees.

門

gate

水

water

石

rock

树

tree

Photo Credits:

Front cover: © Jupiterimages Corporation; back cover: © Alison Wright/National Geographic Stock; title page: © imagebroker.net/SuperStock; page 3: © Wayne Barrett & Anne MacKay/All Canada Photos/Corbis; page 4: © Stock Connection/SuperStock; page 5: © blickwinkel/Alamy; page 6: © iStockphoto.com/Yang Yu; page 7: © Steve Vidler/SuperStock; page 8: © GiacomoGgiannini/Marka/age footstock; page 9: © Michael Wheatley/All Canada Photos/SuperStock; page 10: © Perry Mastrovito/First Light/Corbis

In a Chinese Garden
Level F Leveled Book
© Learning A-Z
Written by Roy Anthony Ramos

All rights reserved.

www.readinga-z.com

Correlation

LEVEL F
Fountas & Pinnell	F
Reading Recovery	9–10
DRA	10